General Food Information

Alameda County Community Food Bank
The primary purpose of the Alameda County Community Food Bank is to mobilize and distribute food to Alameda County's low-income residents. The Food Bank does this by providing direct services agencies that include food pantries, soup kitchens, residential programs, day programs, shelters and USDA distribution sites.

CalFresh (Food Stamps)
CalFresh is the new name for California's Food Stamp Program. CalFresh is a Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), a nutrition program that supplements the needs of low-income persons. The program uses a debit card format called Electronic Benefit Transfer (EBT) to purchase food at retail stores and farmers markets. To be eligible, you must meet income and resource limits. Seniors on SSI are not eligible, but many seniors who have a low income (↓ 200% of poverty) are eligible and do not know it.

For more information or to apply for food stamps, contact the Alameda County Social Services Agency or the Alameda County Food Bank. Their number to enroll in food stamps is Alameda County Community Food Bank: 510-635-3663 ext. 2

Eat Well & Stay Healthy

Many older adults have trouble eating well because of various reasons. The following ideas may help you to do something about it.

If you have trouble chewing…

Because of tooth loss, gum problems, and/or ill-fitting dentures, older adults tend to eliminate certain food groups such as meats and fresh vegetables and fruits, and thus poor nutrition may follow.

What to do:

Try these foods to obtain nutrients:
- Ground meat; scrambled eggs
- Milk, cheese, yogurt, and foods made with milk, such as pudding and cream soups
- Fruit juices; canned fruits, such as applesauce, peaches, and pears
- Vegetable juices; creamed or mashed cooked vegetables
- Cooked cereals; rice; bread pudding; soft cookies

If you have an upset stomach…

Too much gas and other stomach problems may make you stay away from foods, especially milk, you think cause the problem. This means you could be missing out on important nutrients, such as vitamins, calcium, fiber, and protein.

What to do:

- In general, cooked foods that contain milk may not bother you. Try cream soups, pudding, yogurt, and cheese.
- Avoid eating vegetables that cause gas such as beans, cabbage, and broccoli. Try other vegetables, such as green beans, carrots, and potatoes, as well as vegetable juices.

If foods have no taste at all…

Taste and smell sensitivities tend to diminish with age and may make eating less enjoyable. Sometimes due to the medications, many older adults may find their foods having no flavor or tasting bad too.

What to do:

- Increase the flavor of food by adding herbs and spices. Here are some common herbs and spices and the foods they complement.
  - Basil - green beans, potatoes, tomato dishes
  - Cilantro - soups, stews, marinades
  - Rosemary - mushrooms, summer squash, poultry, fish
  - Sage - peas, zucchini, eggs, fish, beef
MyPlate Guide for Americans

In general, older adults are careful about what they should eat. But dietary recommendations from the government can be a bit complicated and confusing. The new guidelines for balanced nutrition from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) are simplified to allow for more flexibility in food choices and to make dietary recommendations more understandable.

Aim for about 1/2 of your plate as fruits and vegetables, about 1/4 of your plate as whole grains, about 1/4 of your plate as protein foods. Include a glass of low-fat or non-fat milk, a slice of cheese or a cup of yogurt with that and you have created a wonderfully balanced meal!

Seniors need to pay particular attention to making sure their food choices are nutrient-dense. Don't waste Calories by eating foods that have little nutritional value. Limit sodium by limiting processed foods. Older adults also need to drink plenty of fluids, usually about 8 glasses a day. Most seniors will need supplemental Vitamin D and Vitamin B-12.

Older adults need to remain as physically active as possible. Strength training at least twice weekly, and doing stretching and flexibility exercises as well as aerobic exercise 3-4 times a week are all crucial to good health. Start slowly and build up your muscles. The benefits are wide-ranging and the results are seen surprisingly fast!
4 Keys to Keep Food Safe

Older adults, along with young children, pregnant women, and people with impaired immune systems, are more vulnerable to foodborne illness. As we age, our immune system weakens making it harder to fight off bacteria and diseases. Also, we have less stomach acid to control harmful bacterial growth in our intestines as we get older. Infections from foodborne illness can be difficult to treat and can reoccur. Further, diabetes, kidney diseases, and some cancer treatments may even add to the risk of getting sicker from food poisoning.

However, the good news is that foodborne illness can be prevented if we follow proper food safety practices. Older adults can protect themselves by practicing the following simple food safety guidelines at home:

Key 1: KEEP CLEAN

- Wash hands properly with soaps and warm water for at least 15 seconds before and after touching any food.
- Rinse all fresh fruits and vegetables under warm running water before serving and eating, including rind and inedible skin. Bacteria on the outer rind can be transferred to the inner flesh when the food is cut or peeled.

Key 2: SEPARATE RAW and COOKED

- Use two cutting boards: one for raw meat, poultry and seafood; the other for washed fresh produce and ready-to-eat foods like breads.
- Wash counters, cutting boards, and utensils with hot soapy water after contact with raw food items.
- Always place cooked and ready-to-eat foods on the top shelf; raw meat, seafood, and poultry on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator.

Key 3: COOK THOROUGHLY

- Cook food thoroughly, especially meat, poultry, seafood, and eggs.
- Use a food thermometer to be sure foods have reached a safe minimum internal temperature.
- Reheat leftovers to 165°F or until hot and steaming.
Cooking Guidelines

Food Type: Beef Roast (rare)
Minimum Internal Temperature & Time Required:
130°F for 112 minutes or 140°F for 12 minutes

Food Type: Beef Roast (medium), Pork Roast, and Ham
Minimum Internal Temperature & Time Required: 145°F for 4 minutes

Food Type: Beef/ Pork (other than roast), Eggs, Fish
Minimum Internal Temperature & Time Required: 145°F for 15 seconds

Food Type: Ground Beef/ Pork/ Game
Minimum Internal Temperature & Time Required: 155°F for 15 seconds

Food Type: All Poultry (Chicken, Turkey) and Stuffed Meats
Minimum Internal Temperature & Time Required: 165°F for 15 seconds

Minimum cooking temperature for microwaved foods: 165°
Minimum temperature when reheating food: 165°

Key 4: KEEP TEMPERATURE RIGHT

- Keep hot foods HOT and cold foods COLD because bacteria grow rapidly between 41° to 135°F.
- Never leave cooked food out of refrigeration over 2 hours.

Rule of Thumb:
Eat it, Refrigerate it, or Throw it!
